Technology and Connection

Many people view technology as a factor in alienating people and reducing our personal connections. In this time of “social distancing,” however, technology may be the factor that preserves our connections and maintains our humanity. Although we are severely limiting visitor access on the Snider Campus, our Recreation Department is using computer conferencing to bring together residents with their families. It is just one way to remind our residents that they are not alone, they are cared for, and loved. If we can maintain our connections to each other through this difficult time, then we will emerge with the fabric of our community intact. We have the ability to thrive in spite of the challenges of the coronavirus!

“Too often we underestimate the power of a touch, a smile, a kind word, a listening ear, an honest compliment, or the smallest act of caring, all of which have the potential to turn a life around.”
