Snider Schmooze

A MESSAGE FROM DR. DAVID KESELMAN, CEO

Hello and welcome to this edition of the Snider schmooze. I am hoping that this edition finds you in good health and safe, these are certainly not easy times and require personal stamina and resilience. The current pandemic has been challenging our very existence since March, and while we are starting to ease up on many levels, its hold is still quite strong.

Despite the challenges, we have been and continue to be very busy behind closed doors, trying to maintain a level of normalcy for everyone's sake. Much of what we used to do has shifted and taken on virtual formats, to help maintain physical distancing and at the same time maintain a level of social connection. For the first time in LBHH's existence, our AGM was done virtually. If you did not have an opportunity to participate, please reach out and we can send you a link to our annual report, you will find a lot of valuable information and a good review of what has been accomplished to date and of what is still to be accomplished.

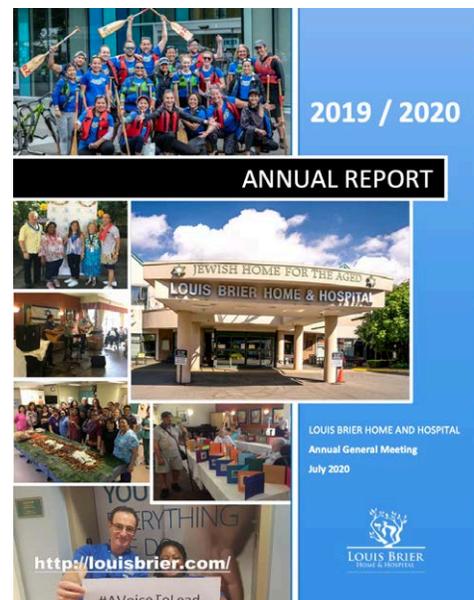

We continue to work towards becoming a center of excellence, and get involved in a range of activities and collaborative work with major stakeholders. Our latest endeavor was to be part of a research activity with UBC nursing exploring the impact of COVID-19 on residents and staff. We have also collaborated with a couple of high-tech companies to pilot an "automated concierge" to help increase safety and security, including screening and administering PPE to staff/residents/families, and all other individuals seeking to enter the building.

We are in the midst of optimizing our information system and electronics health record, to be a more comprehensive all inclusive record. This will help us improve communication among all care providers, as well as significantly decrease the need for paper record and documentation.

With this, we are rolling out the point of care process, where all staff have access to a smart device to document their work, access information, and communicate with other providers and families. Stay tuned for more information.

Summer has finally arrived, I hope you take the time to enjoy the good weather. As always thank you for your support and commitment during these difficult times.

Dr. David Keselman, CEO

HUMAN RESOURCES

LBHH&WR “CHAI Honours” Recognition Program

Have you seen the Tree Mural that was recently painted by the Recreation Team member – Charlotte Vogt? The Tree looks even more ‘full of LIFE’ with all of its leaves! We are hoping to use this Mural for a new recognition initiative!!!

The “CHAI Honours” is a new LBHH&WR Recognition Program for Everyone!!! The Recognition Program is intended for anyone who wants to recognize any individual that embodies the LBHH&WR Values. “CHAI Honours” recognizes individuals who contribute to the Spirit of LBHH&WR’s CHAI, Hebrew word for LIFE, and this would be represented through the placement of a recognition certificate on the Tree.

Do you have any ideas about this new recognition initiative? If so, please email HR@louisbrier.com and tell us what you think.

HR Engagement Initiatives

As many of the Human Resources engagement initiatives are social in nature and because we are restricted from being in close contact, we put many of our events on hold. These include but are not limited to:

- Working with HR
- Coffee with HR
- Monthly Birthday Celebrations
- Long Service Awards Event
- Staff Appreciation BBQ

We are looking into re-implementing these initiatives, as well as other engagement, wellness, and recognition initiatives, in a modified capacity now that HR is back on site! If you have any suggestions, please let us know.

TU B'AV

Tu B'Av, literally, the 15th day in the month of Av, is a minor Jewish holiday and over the generations, is probably more commonly acknowledged in Israel than elsewhere in the world.

There is not much known about this holiday, but “On the 15th of the summer month of Av, under a full moon, young Jewish men and women dressed in white would go out and dance in the vineyards of ancient Judea.”

There are lots of questions as to why the ancient Israelites were dancing in the vineyard. One theory is that it is an agricultural holiday celebrating the grape harvest that coincides with the summer equinox. Another is that it is about the annual celebration of the day that the prohibition was lifted on intermarriage among the 12 tribes. There are more!

While there are lots of theories about the meaning and origin of this holiday, it appears that latter-day Zionists enjoy this holiday and it is celebrated as a holiday of love, similar to Valentine’s Day, and is believed to be a great day for weddings.

So on the 15th of Av (August 5, but begins on the evening of August 4), tell that “special someone” that you love them.

What could be wrong about another day to celebrate love?

SCU GARDEN UPDATE

The care of the garden is ongoing. At the moment it is full of colour, with shade from a beautiful canopy of leaves from the central tree, for the residents and staff to enjoy. Work has been done on the structure of the garden, planting perennials and improving the soil. Thanks to Vancouver artist and gardener Rosemary Burden for donating the perennials and providing joyful encouragement. A big hug goes to the staff for the ongoing help with maintenance and care.

There have been many helpers and we appreciate them all. A lot of the colour in the garden has been generously provided by SCU staff member Teresa Racal-Hill, LPN, with gifts of baskets of annuals, as well as flowering perennials. Staff report that the residents are enjoying their time in the garden, with walks, some meals and recreation therapy sessions outside.

PSYCHOLOGICAL AND MENTAL HEALTH IMPACT OF COVID 19

On March 11, 2020, The World Health Organization declares Covid 19 outbreak as pandemic. Since the first case of Covid 19 confirmed in BC in late January, the situation has evolved quickly into an unprecedented health – care emergency across the province.

There is increasing global awareness that the COVID-19 pandemic is not only causing physical illness, but has major mental health implications as well. Every sector of society is affected; from children, adults and seniors, to frontline healthcare workers – and even mental health professionals. The COVID-19 health crisis can be stressful for a variety of reasons. The anxiety of an unknown disease can be overwhelming and cause strong emotions, or trigger a worsening of existing mental health issues.

Feelings of helplessness, confusion and anger are not unusual at times like this. Sometimes people might not feel anything at all: a sense of numbness sets in. A large part of the emotional upset is caused by fear of the unknown. “When will it end? When will we be able to return to normal?” have become commonly-asked questions, to which there are no clear answers. There are no right or wrong feelings, or ways to deal with these feelings in this unprecedented time; just know that we are not alone. The isolation caused by social distancing is disorienting, as for most people it’s an unprecedented experience in our lives. Whether we live alone or with others, the sheer lack of face-to-face communication and the absence of physical contact are disheartening.

The loss of jobs which affects the livelihood of thousands of people was disheartening, and; we all want Covid 19 to be over. We all want to get on with our lives. We will need even greater stores of resilience, patience, humility and generosity in the months ahead. This is the time for renewing our commitment to empowering communities, suppressing transmission and saving lives. We have so much room for improvement. Every aspect of our lives must be subjected to an inventory of how we are taking responsibilities. Let us all be responsive people. We are witnessing what is happening in our neighboring country, we have to take care of each other and let us all be kind to one another. Everyone responds to the effects of a pandemic in different way. We have a family member or friend who is worried or scared, try to listen to and empathize with them. Some people may want to vent their fears or anger at the situation, while others may want to problem-solve.

For frontline workers in healthcare institutions, the stress on our personal lives is compounded by the enormous task of caring for others. In addition to shouldering the fear of catching the virus, we are struggling with the worry that we could pass the virus to our families. As a result of these overlapping stresses, frontline workers are at a higher risk of developing mental health issues down the road after this pandemic starts to resolve. By actively practicing mental fitness, we can elevate our health and work performance, while effectively managing varying levels of stress. Exercise helps alleviate feelings of anger and frustration, or a few minutes of meditation can allow you to create a space of calmness and tranquility. Other measures include staying connected with friends and family virtually, reading, listening to music and re-discovering long-lost hobbies. Talking to a professional can also help.

Here are some ways to practice mental fitness:

1. SCHEDULE “me-time” daily.
2. REWARD yourself.
3. PLAY to your strengths.
4. ASK for and OFFER help
5. DE-STRESS your diet.
6. PRESS pause once in a while - downtime is good.
7. GET regular physical activity.
8. SET goals and stay on target with a journal.
9. PRACTICE relaxation techniques and get enough sleep.
10. CHOOSE a positive attitude.

PSYCHOLOGICAL AND MENTAL HEALTH IMPACT OF COVID 19 Continued

No workplace is immune from these Covid 19's risk and we cannot afford to limit our definition of health and safety to only physical, we have to measure positive psychological and mental health. Positive mental health is the capacity to feel, think, and act in ways that enhance the ability to enjoy life with challenges while facing the challenges of this Covid 19, Pandemic.
